

HELPING YOU IS KILLING ME

Pastors, Overseers, CEO's and Business Owners, are you growing weary and about to throw in the towel because those who say they are called to serve and take care of you, really don't know how to? Are you feeling alone and isolated because you find it difficult to be yourself around those who walk closely with you? After ministering, giving, teaching and leading, do those around you constantly take life from you instead of speak words of life and encouragement back to you? If you answered yes to any of the above questions, let me help you? I want to help you.

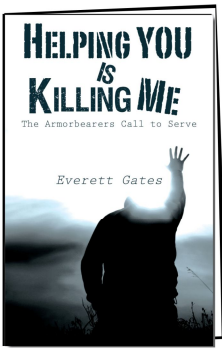

Armorbearer, Administrator, Secretary, Church Worker, Employee, Spouse, are you about to walk out and quit because you feel taken for granted and unappreciated? Have you been hurt while trying to do what God called you to do, yet you knew that He gave you that assignment? Do you sometimes feel that your life doesn't matter? Hold on, there is hope. This book will help you. God has a plan for your life.

Each of us have a purpose in life, and serving is one of mine. I have been in ministry serving pastors for 19 years and I still love it. Someone once asked me the question, why do you like serving and giving so much? My response is always, "I see what the enemy has done. Through ignorance of servanthood, we have allowed the devil to creep into our midst and turn us into selfish, greedy people. No one wants to serve. Instead, everyone wants to be served. Meanwhile, as Christians march through the twenty-first century, our pastors are dying prematurely, marriages are being destroyed, relationships are falling apart, churches are splitting, leaders are being exposed and ridicule and our companies are going under – all because no one wants to die to themselves and serve. What the Church needs and what America needs is people with the courage to tell God, "Kill me so that I can live."
